AUSLAN DAY: LET'S BUILD A MORE DEAF AWARE NATION

This April, we invite you to celebrate one of the most significant days in the Deaf calendar - Auslan Day!

Auslan, the term derived from the words "Australian Sign Language," is the language of the Australian Deaf Community, a language in its own right with its own grammar and syntax, distinct from English. Recognised as an official community language by the Australian Government in 1987, the visibility and access to Auslan is limited across many areas of daily life. As an organisation that supports the Australian Deaf community, we make sure we come together on the 13th of April every year, to celebrate the language of Deaf Australians - Auslan - with a focus on advocating for a more accessible and Deaf aware nation.

introduces daily News in Auslan, sharing the important stories of the day in the first language of the Australian Deaf community. Our work focuses on increasing opportunities to access information, services and supports in Auslan, so that any Deaf Australian can live life to the fullest.

As a supporter of the Deaf Lottery, you're already giving back to the Deaf community. Perhaps you're here because you believe in supporting a meaningful cause, you have a Deaf friend or family member, or you want to make a difference while enjoying the chance to win life-changing prizes. Whatever your reason, your support plays a vital role in funding services, programs, and initiatives that empower Deaf Australians across the country.

For many Deaf Australians, simple tasks like going to the doctor, attending a parent-teacher interview or keeping up with the news need to embed Auslan into these situations, through using Auslan interpreters and having programs directly delivered in Auslan. Deaf Connect recently partnered with SBS and the Australian Government to deliver a pilot initiative which

This lottery, we're encouraging you to amplify your impact by raising awareness within your own circles - whether at work, with friends, or even during your daily coffee run. Auslan Day falls on 13 April, but any day is a great time to start. Learn some signs, message your network, and consider how you can be part of a more aware Australia. Every action - whether big or small - has a meaningful impact.
